

coverage, known as beat reporting. Classes focus on the following beats: politics, business and finance, education, health, social welfare, the environment and sports or other beats relevant to Hong Kong. Students will apply their newswriting and reporting skills to covering these beats and will, through research and experience, build up the background knowledge needed to support this kind of reporting. Students are also introduced to follow-up news reporting and more complex forms of journalism, including opinion writing, and are introduced to global news through the exercise of localizing an international news story. The course is taught in English and is designed to prepare students for their internships.

JOUR 3006 Journalism Internship (0,0,0) (tbc)

All Journalism students are encouraged to undertake a non-graded and zero-credit professional internship. The internship is normally of at least two months full-time employment or professional practice during the summer between the third and fourth years but it can be a minimum of 160 hours of work. Students are required to conform to all reasonable requirements of their internship employer. Both the employer and the student file reports with the Journalism Department after the internship. Chinese Journalism students are expected to take their internship in the Chinese-language media or broadcast news organizations and International Journalism students to take theirs in the English-language media. The department will do its best to help students who wish to intern overseas but cannot promise help with travel or other expenses.
